Yuma Region

About First Things First

Approved by Arizona voters, First Things First (FTF) works to ensure that your youngest children have access to quality early childhood experiences so they will start school healthy and ready to succeed. Across the state, FTF Regional Partnerships Councils — in collaboration with local leaders — identify the education and health needs of children birth through age 5 in their communities and fund strategies to address those needs.

Welcome to Cocopah Tribe Resource Connections Guide

Families are a child’s first and best teacher. It is important that parents and caregivers have the information and support they need to make the best choices.

Especially during the early years, when a child’s brain grows and develops the most. In fact, 90% of a child’s brain growth happens by age 5, before they start kindergarten. And scientific research has shown that a child’s experiences in their early years affect how their brain develops.

That’s why First Things First partners with families and communities to help kids have the positive, nurturing experiences they need to arrive at school ready to succeed. We do this through quality early care and education programs, preventive health efforts and supporting parents in their role as their child’s first teachers.

The purpose of this guide is to allow organizations, businesses and other entities in the FTF Cocopah Tribe region to come together to create a family-centered, comprehensive, collaborative and high-quality early childhood system that supports the development, health and early education of all children birth through age 5 in the FTF Cocopah Tribe region.

We hope you will find this information useful!

If you would like additional copies of this guide, would like to suggest corrections, or would like to be included in the next edition, please contact First Things First at 928.343.3020 or YumaFTFGuide@FirstThingsFirst.org

Thank you for partnering with us as we work together to build a better future for our children, our families and our community!

Cocopah Indian Tribe

The Cocopah Indian Tribe, known as the River People, have lived along the lower Colorado River and delta for centuries, maintaining their traditions and culture throughout many political and environmental changes. The Cocopah are part of the greater Yuman-speaking peoples who have inhabited lands along the Colorado River for millennia have a largely oral language with histories being transmitted from generation to generation and through settler historical accounts documenting Cocopah life.

Established in 1917, the Cocopah Reservation comprises approximately 6,500 acres. Currently about 1,200 tribal members live and work on or near the Reservation. In 1964, the Tribe founded its first Constitution and established a Tribal Council.

Located 13 miles south of Yuma, AZ, the Reservation is home to Cocopah Casino, Cocopah Resort & Conference Center, Cocopah Rio Colorado Golf Course, Cocopah Museum, Cocopah RV & Golf Resort, Cocopah Speedway and Wild River Family Entertainment Center and Korner Store. Visitors enjoy golfing, gaming, shopping, learning about the Tribe's culture and taking in the great scenic beauty of the region.

Why Early Childhood Matters

From birth to age 5, a child's brain grows more than at any other time in life. And early brain development has a lasting impact on a child's ability to learn and succeed in school and life. The quality of a child's experiences in the first few years of life – positive or negative – helps shape how their brain develops.

of Brain Growth Happens Before Kindergarten

At birth, the average baby's brain is about a quarter of the size of the average adult brain. Incredibly, it doubles in size in the first year. It keeps growing to about 80% of adult size by age 3 and 90% – nearly full grown – by age 5.

The brain is the command center of the human body. A newborn baby has all of the brain cells (neurons) they'll have for the rest of their life, but it's the connections between these cells that really make the brain work. Brain connections enable us to move, think, communicate and do just about everything. The early childhood years are crucial for making these connections. At least one million new neural connections (synapses) are made every second, more than at any other time in life.

The early years are the best opportunity for a child's brain to develop the connections they need to be healthy, capable, successful adults. The connections needed for many important, higher-level abilities like motivation, self-regulation, problem solving and communication are formed in these early years – or not formed. It's much harder for these essential brain connections to be formed later in life.

QUALITY FIRST

 FIRST THINGS FIRST

What is Quality First?

Quality First is a program of First Things First, Arizona's early childhood agency, that supports Arizona's child care providers, so they can support our young children. With over 1,200 participants, these programs are licensed and regulated, but participating in Quality First is voluntary. These programs are committed to quality improvement, going beyond regulatory requirements to help the infants, toddlers and preschoolers in their care be ready for success in school and beyond.

Quality Matters

90% of a child's brain growth happens before age 5, and the positive, nurturing relationships young kids have with adults — from parents to child care and early learning professionals — shape their learning now and throughout their lives.

Quality First Scholarships

Early care and education providers enrolled in Quality First may be eligible to offer Quality First Scholarships, which help low-income families with children birth to age 5 afford quality child care. Many low-income families struggle to pay for quality child care. Some must choose between a job or leaving their children in care that is not their first choice. Quality First Scholarships help early care and education providers fill paid slots in their program and reimburse them for some of the expenses of providing quality (higher wages for more experienced and educated professionals, low staff-to-child ratios and small group sizes, etc.).

Find a Quality First Child Care Program Near You

Choosing a child care or preschool program for your young child is a big decision. Things like location, availability, hours and cost are important to consider, and so is the quality of the program. Research shows that quality early care and education programs help young children learn, grow and be ready for success in kindergarten and beyond.

Reading is vital to a child's ability to learn and be successful in school. And the early literacy skills needed to be a good reader – like language and vocabulary – start developing from birth. But it doesn't happen automatically. A child's brain is not pre-wired for reading.

When babies and toddlers hear words and language from caring adults, their brains develop the important connections needed to learn how to read. Studies show that children whose parents and caregivers regularly talk and read with them develop larger vocabularies, become better readers and do better in school. That's because the first few years of a child's life are when the brain grows and develops the most, and a child's experiences in these early years affect how their brain develops.

Language and early literacy developments starts from the very beginning. Babies are listening in utero, and once they're born, they're communicating through eye contact, facial expressions, crying, smiles and touch. When adults respond with words, conversation and attention, it helps build the child's brain in ways that promote healthy development and learning.
